For some museums in the world, love is in the air all year round.

The Palazzo Filomela in Venice is better known as the Museum of Love. This museum was once the private home of a famous 16th-century singer. On the walls, you can see paintings of legendary lovers, such as the god Cupid and his lover, Psyche.

For many, love and chocolate go hand in hand, so a visit to the Chocolate Museum in Cologne, Germany, makes sense. There, visitors can learn about the history of chocolate and watch chocolate bars being made. The museum also gives out wafers that were dipped in chocolate from a three-meter-high chocolate fountain.

What is more, the Diamond Museum Amsterdam in Holland is the place to go when your're ready to take your love to the next level. At this museum, you can learn about diamonds, including how to tell a real one from a fake one. You may also get some ideas about which diamond to buy when you're getting engaged.

Shakespeare once wrote, "Love looks not with the eyes, but with the mind." Thanks to these special museums, we can all open our minds to, and fill our hearts with, love.

- 71 Where is the museum which was once the home of a famous 16th century singer?
(A) Amsterdam (B) Cologne (C) Venice (D) Shakespeare

- 72 What do you think Shakespeare means in “ Love looks not with the eyes, but with the mind?”
- (A) Love is blind and irrational.
 (B) Love is not what you see neither what you think.
 (C) Love is not seeing the appearance but the inside of a person.
 (D) Love at first sight is not reliable.
- 73 According to the article, which museum would you go if you were about to ask someone to marry you?
- (A) Palazzo Filomela (B) Chocolate Museum
 (C) Museum of Relationship (D) Diamond Museum Amsterdam
- 74 Why is the author writing about a chocolate museum in this article?
- (A) Because people love to learn the history of chocolate.
 (B) Because handmade chocolate is the best way to express love.
 (C) Because there is a huge chocolate fountain.
 (D) Because many people believe that love and chocolate are closely connected.
- 75 In the article, what do you think “Love is in the air” mean?
- (A) Love is everywhere. (B) Love is like the air.
 (C) Love is invisible. (D) Love is so unreliable.

As a flood of news headlines highlighting overtourism, it's easy to think that the planet is simply full. But away from the well-worn tourist trails, you'll discover another travel story entirely different.

In much of the world, there are places that are eager to welcome tourists. Based on the most recent data by the United Nations World Tourism Organization (UNWTO), in 2017, nearly 87 million international tourists arrived in France; yet mere 2,000 international tourists visited the South Pacific country of Tuvalu, where it's easy to find a beach -- or even an entire island -- to yourself. The same data reflect many of the world's least-visited countries and territories, where you'll find gorgeous natural beauty, culture and history without pushing through bunches of selfie sticks.

Imagine lounging on Sierra Leone beaches, exploring Liechtenstein's mountaintop castles or shipwreck diving in the South Pacific! How rewarding it can be to leave the popular sites behind. If you can't picture a week in Kiribati or imagine the flavor of Timor Leste's traditional cuisine, it's OK. By spinning the globe and booking a flight to a country you know little about, you'll infuse the journey with a sense of wonder. That, after all, is what travel is for.

- 76 The number shown in the data of UNWTO concerning international tourists to France is an indication of ____.
- (A) Wonderful trip (B) Romantic tour (C) Overtourism (D) Gorgeous experience
- 77 What is common between Sierra Leone and Tuvalu, as described in this passage?
