四、閱讀測驗

In many countries, it is not unusual for families of different backgrounds to live together in shared space. However, in the United States, this idea may still be considered odd.

But this type of housing, called co-housing, is gaining popularity in the United States, too. Co-housing complexes are popping up in cities across the country. For many people, this way of life is a relief to the busy modern life-style. About 25 co-housing communities have been built in recent years, and 150 more are planned.

In co-housing complexes, everyone helps take care of children and elderly residents. It's also a place where residents shop, cook, and eat together. Residents of co-housing complexes like its sense of shared community.

Children have other kids to play with, which many families like. Other residents like the feeling of living in a "village." Residents also say that they can live in co-housing for less money than they would pay for nearby apartments.

Some people may think that co-housing might be like a 1960s "hippie" commune. But after they learn about it, they change their minds. This is because privacy is still important to residents. They have individual houses, not one big house, an old-style communities did. Although they share the responsibilities of the community, each family still lives its own life.

Will this trend catch on? It probably will never become the most popular form of housing in the United States, but for many, it's the answer to many of the problems of a busy modern life.

46. What is the difference between modern co-housing and hippie commune?
① Age. ② Income. ③ Location. ④ Privacy.
47. What is not a benefit people can get from co-housing complexes?
① A sense of community.
② Cooking and eating together.
③ Fresh air like in a village.
④ Lower living expenses.
48. What is the possible meaning of odd?
① acceptable ② imaginative ③ modern ④ strange
49. Why do people like the idea of co-housing?
① People live a busy life.
② Many young men can't afford a house.
③ The economic situation is very bad.
④ Transportation is not easy.
50. How many co-housing communities are there in the United States?
① 25 ② 125 ③ 150 ④ 175
